Re: Revision to Technical Definition in Pending Exclusion Request for Corrosion-Resistant Alloy Steel for Precision Press Parts (X-061.4)

Dear Ms. Blue:

This letter is filed on behalf of Nippon Steel Corporation ("NSC") to revise the technical definition provided in its November 13, 2001 exclusion request for Corrosion-Resistant Alloy Steel for Precision Press Parts (identified on the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative's web site as X-61.4). Specifically, the thickness tolerances identified in the original filing should be narrowed. The revised technical description is as follows:

Corrosion-Resistant Alloy Steel For Precision Press Parts is an alloy sheet product that is electrolytically coated with either pure zinc or zinc-nickel and is used in the production of laserbeam printer parts. This product comes in two varieties with thickness parameters as follows:

Variety 1	Thickness of 0.6 mm or more but less than 1.0 mm, with a thickness tolerance of +0/-0.05 mm
Variety 2	Thickness of 1.0 mm or more but less than 1.6 mm, with a thickness tolerance of +0/-0.04 mm
